SEWING MACHINE.
We would call attention to the following facts to consider in this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:
It forms a flat stitch, seam which will not rip in wear;
It runs nearly noiseless;
A patent device prevents its being turned backward;
The needle cannot be set wrong;
Can be used on sensibly without other instructions than accompany the Machine;
It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars enquire of

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO OCTOBER 20.

Proceedings of the Congress of Fenians.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—At the session of the Fenian Congress on Wednesday, General Sweeney was assigned a seat on the platform. The General was received with much enthusiasm, but declined to make a speech.

At the afternoon session, a resolution was adopted precluding delegates from taking notes of the proceedings of the Convention. Members were ordered to destroy any already written, for fear they might be lost and give information to the enemy.

Hon. [illegible] of Massachusetts, Rice, of Michigan, and Capt. Welch, of Pennsylvania, were appointed a committee of three to prepare a condensed report of the proceedings of the Convention to be forwarded to the press, subject to the inspection of the Head Centre.

The report of the envoy of the brotherhood from abroad was received with enthusiastic demonstration. A resolution was adopted that the members of the Convention rising to their feet with one accord pledge the fullest support to their friends abroad.

On Thursday the Head Centre addressed the Congress, advising unanimity, harmony, prudence and caution, in all their deliberations. He counseled the entire revision of the Constitution of the organization, and read statements in relation to the cause of the delay in the issue of the bonds of the Irish Republic and also suggested certain changes in the financial management of the organization.

The Committee on Credentials made a final report and it was resolved that no more applications for seats in the Convention be received.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The Herald's Philadelphia correspondent says among the measures which will occupy the Fenian National Congress now in session in that city is to provide for the organization of the American members of the brotherhood into a military body ready to co-operate with their brethren across the water.

The bonds of the Irish Republic are also to be issued without delay.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Herald's Philadelphia special despatch says:

"Enough has transpired to make it certain that the delegates to the Fenian Congress are to make greater sacrifices for the movement. It is supposed that each circle will have to act as a committee in promoting the bond loans. The Brotherhood thus far have drawn altogether from the initiated, but well disposed outsiders are now to be called on. The delegates report their constituents as husbanding well their strength.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—At the Fenian Convention to-day Patrick J. Whelan, a prominent Irish American journalist made his appearance, having just returned from a tour in Ireland, during which he was intimately connected with the Irish Fenians. He informed himself of their plans, &c., and reports their organization powerful and under skillful leaders.

The numbers present at the Congress have been increased by delegations from the West, and one from California is expected.

Their financial matters are being perfected, and the subscription to the loan is soon to be commenced.

Great Fire at Detroit.

DETROIT, (Mich.) Oct. 19.—The Michigan Central Railroad Company's freight depot, containing a large amount of freight, was entirely destroyed by fire last night. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000; partially insured.

Colorado Nominations.

DENVER, Oct. 20.—The Union State Convention nominated for Governor, Wm. Gilpin; for Representative, George M. Chilcott. There was a full delegation present from all sections of the Territory. Among the resolutions adopted, was the following:

Resolved, That this Convention condemns the malicious attacks on the soldiers of Colorado who hastily left the comforts of home and the profits of their business, and entered upon a campaign of unusual rigor, vanquished a large tribe of Indians at Sand creek, whose hands were still stained with the blood of our citizens; who had taken into captivity worse than death, helpless women and children, and whose lodges were ornamented with fresh scalps from their victims, and that in the opinion of this Convention, the protection of the people of the frontier and the safety of their lines of supply and mail and telegraphic communications, demand the theater of Indian difficulties be created into a department with an experienced western Indian fighter as the General in command.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The Herald's Raleigh correspondent says the North Carolina Convention unanimously adopted an ordinance submitting to a vote of the people the ordinance prohibiting slavery and declaring the secession ordinance null and void. An ordinance to scale down both the old and new debts of the State to a gold basis, consolidate them and issue new bonds—was introduced and laid over.

A resolution requesting Congress to repeal the test oath imposed on the National Legislature, was introduced and laid over.

The Convention agreed to meet again after the adjournment of the present session, in May next.

The Herald's Richmond correspondent says Gen. Grant refused the application made by Henry A. Wise, who declines taking the oath, for the restoration of the lands formerly owned by him.

RICHMOND, Oct. 20.—Raleigh papers of yesterday publish a telegram from the President to Gov. Holden, declaring that every dollar of the debt created to aid the rebellion should be repudiated finally and forever, and expressing the hope that the people of North Carolina will wash their hands of everything that partakes in the slightest degree of the rebellion so recently crushed by the strong arm of the Government.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 18.—The State Convention adjourned last Wednesday, to meet again on the 4th Monday in May. An ordinance was passed preventing any future legislature assuming or paying any debt created directly or indirectly for the prosecution of the rebellion. This is a triumph for Gov. Holden and the loyal element. The copperheads and enemies of the Government favored the assumption of the rebel State debt.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The brig Atlanta, of Philadelphia, bound for Mobile, foundered at sea on the 16th, and sunk in two hours after her abandonment by the crew and passengers, who drifted 24 hours on a raft until picked up and brought to this port by the U. S. gunboat Florida, which arrived here last night.

A special to the Times dated Washington, Oct. 20th, says Joe Davis, brother of Jeff, has made a demand for restoration of not only his, but his brother's property, in Mississippi.

The withdrawal of troops from the South, heretofore loudly called for by the people, is now sorely deplored. Piteous appeals to retain them are now received.

Death of Dr. Crocker.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 20.—Rev. Dr. Nathan B. Crocker, for more than 60 years rector of St. John's Church in this city, died last evening, aged 84 years.

THE WEBSTER FAMILY.—A late Eastern paper says:

Daniel Webster, the grandson and namesake of the great statesman and orator and son of Col. Fletcher Webster, died at Marshfield on the 2d inst., aged 21 years. But one of the family is now left to perpetuate the name—Ashburton, the brother of the deceased and the inheritor of the Marshfield estate, as soon as he comes of age, a very promising young man, now in the American navy. Fletcher Webster left these two sons and a daughter, the last still living. Edward Webster, the Major, who died in Mexico, left no children. There are four other grandchildren by his much beloved Julia, bearing the name of Appleton. This is all of the family of Daniel Webster. The stay of the house, in of its name, is Ashburton. Whether he, with his limited resources, will be able to keep Marshfield in a state worthy the fame of his grandfather, is doubtful. That remains untouched as the great statesman left it. The library contains 4,000 volumes, and is full in English history and literature, cyclopedias, dictionaries, and all reference books and miscellaneous works. The parlors abound in curiosities that were presented to Mr. Webster. The house is a spacious one of wood, painted white, with green blinds. It is in the style of an Englishman's home, and has that magnificent old elm beside it, which shaded the immortal Daniel.

THE BLACK DEATH.—Since it has been said that the Siberian plague is extending rapidly westward, some accounts of the plague called the Black Death might not be uninteresting. The following is from the Cornhill, England, Magazine:

The Black Death, like many other terrible plagues of its class, can be traced far back into the remote East; and there is no doubt that it was the same disease which ravaged Tartary in 1333, fifteen years before it arrived on the shores of Europe. There had been a great famine in China, preceded by floods and earthquakes, which alone destroyed 400,000. From the remote East it crept along, and made its way into Europe some years later, for pestilence often travels slowly, accompanying the migration of men, and being carried about in their clothes and merchandise. It did not arrive in Europe until 1347, fifteen years after its outbreak in China. "From China," says Hesker, "the routes of the caravans lay to the north of the Caspian Sea, through Central Asia, to Turis. Here ships were ready to take the produce of the East to Constantinople, the capital of commerce and medium of communication between Europe, Asia and Africa." Contagion made its way along these channels and Constantinople, and the seaports of Asia Minor where the foci whence the disease was carried to every country of Europe. Making its way across the European continent, it made its greatest ravages—save perhaps in England—in Italy, raging terribly at Florence, where it was observed and described by the poet Boccaccio. Passing along the shores of the Mediterranean, it invaded France by the way of Avignon, spreading thence to England on the one hand, and to Germany on the other, whence like the cholera, of the present day, it doubled back to Russia, and so back to the East.

The Black Death, so called from the rapid putrefaction of the bodies of its victims, was of the same nature as the Oriental plague [illegible] a putrid typhus, one of the greater malignity. The boils of the latter disease were found [illegible] the former whenever the patient lived long enough to permit their development. The inhabitants of Europe at that time have been computed at [illegible]00,000,000—a high estimate. Of these, 25,000,000 or one fourth of the whole perished. In England it was still more fatal, owing likely to the rude habits of the people. During the term of one year, viz: from August, 1348, to Aug., 1349, three fourths of the whole population perished! Indeed, if we are to credit the annalists of that period, no more than one-tenth escaped! Many succumbed in a few hours, like Sennacherib's host; none endured for three days. In France numbers died on the spot where they were first smitten, as if struck by lightning. This terrible scourge having swept over the then well-known world, committing such misery and poverty as the world never saw before nor since, at length died out, never again, we trust, to re-visit the earth. It spared neither age nor sex, nor condition; the rich and poor alike succumbed. There died in Venice of the aristocratic, no less than 100,000 persons; in Florence, the refined 60,000; in Paris, the gay, 50,000; and in London, the wealthy, 100,000; while in busy, rich, industrious Norwich, there died the almost incredible number of 50,000 persons—nearly the whole of the inhabitants, one would suppose! At Avignon the deaths occurred with such frightful rapidity as to wholly baffle the attempts of the living to inter their friends and relatives; and the Pope was obliged to consecrate the Rhone to allow of the dead bodies finding a hallowed resting place upon its bosom, until it finally committed them to the great deep.

THE REBEL GENERAL WINDER AND HIS CHARACTER IN HISTORY.—When the rebel General J. H. Winder died we published a sketch of his life, giving several facts in illustration of his character as expressed in his nickname of "Hog Winder." This sketch gave serious offence to a surviving brother of the rebel General, and he wrote us a letter in vindication of his dead brother. Portions of this letter we published, rather than do the dead any injustice. We omitted, however, some denunciations of ourself as an incorrect and partial historian. It now appears, however, from the very damning evidence, elicited by the examination into the atrocities of Henry Wirtz, that all we then said of Winder was true, but was far from being the whole truth. It was reserved for one of his associates in treason—though to his credit be it said, not in atrocity—to paint Winder in his true colors; and for the sake of the truth of history we call attention to the record which we publish this morning of the rebel Inspector General Chandler, implicating Winder and all the rebel authorities in the deliberate, cold-blooded scheme to murder our prisoners. History has never before recorded such horrible atrocities, nor painted such terrible scenes; nor can its most diligent student find traces of characters so deliberately cruel or demoniacal as those of Winder and Wirtz.—N. Y. Herald, Sept. 16th.

DEATH OF MRS. MOORE.—Mrs. Moore, the widow of the late Thomas Moore, died at Sloperton Cottage on Monday, September 4th, at the age of sixty-eight years. "Bessy" Moore does not appear to occupy a great place in her husband's poetry, but rarely was a great poet more attached to his wife. Through all his letters and journals he is never tired of referring to her—quoting what she said, telling what she did, describing how she looked and recording how she was admired. He married her in 1811, and her history is summed up in this one phrase—that she was the delight of his life. Mrs. Moore was the last that remained of the present generation of the Moore family.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING OCTOBER 25, 1865

The New Method of Reducing Quartz by Dr Ayer's Chemical Process

Two or three months ago we republished from the New York [illegible] an account of a recent invention of Dr. Ayer, the distinguished chemist of Lowell, in which it was stated that rock containing the precious metals may be reduced and its treasures extracted much more perfectly and at a far less cost by this means than by any other process yet known. It is now proposed to apply this invention to the purpose for which it was designed. Dr Ayer has sold the patent which he obtained for his discovery, to a company in New York of which Gen. B. F. Butler is President. "The Chemical Gold and Silver and Silver Reducing Company" now announce that they are ready to contract for the reduction of ores and also for the sale of rights. The process having been thoroughly tested and proved an entire success it only remains for those who desire to make use of it to obtain the right to do so. Of its perfect operation there is absolute certainty, and hence no one need fear that it will prove a failure.

Specimens of rock are often found which are rich in gold and silver, but which under the method now in use, can be rendered of no value owing to the presence in the rock of the baser metals and the impossibility of separating the gold and silver from them. It is found that from twenty to forty per cent, only of the gold in the ores, is obtained by the present system of stamping and amalgamation. No matter how fine the rock is comminuted it is found under the microscope to be in granules and little masses which contain gold. This gold, mercury can not reach. The invention of Dr Ayer overcomes all these difficulties. By means of chemical processes the rock is broken up desulphurized and rendered soft and friable. We have seen some quartz that had been tested by this method. Its molecular structure was entirely broken up, and it could be easily crumbled to powder, merely with the fingers. The rock was disintegrated into its minutest atoms, releasing all the metals that were lodged in it. The same operation expels all the baser metals that exist in the ore, and leaves the gold free for amalgamation.

The comparative cost of extracting gold by the process now generally used, and that invented by Dr. Ayer, is largely in favor of the latter method. The cost of machinery to stamp 100 tons of rock per day, is put at $100,000. The cost of furnaces to disintegrate the same amount of rock in the same time, is reckoned at $20,000. Here is a vast saving in the capital invested. Again, by the stamp process it is shown that on an average, no more than 30 per cent of the gold is saved. By the chemical process the rock yields 80 per cent. of the gold it contains. Assuming the ore to be worth $100 per ton, the yield from crushing 100 tons each day, would give $3,000. The daily yield from the same amount of ore by the disintegrating process would be $8,000. Thus, there is a saving of $80,000, in the first investment, and also a daily saving of $5,000 in the yield.

This invention is destined, as it now appears, to prove one of the most valuable ever made. Some time ago it was predicted by those who had witnessed its operation, that it would completely revolutionize the system of obtaining the precious metals from the ores in which they are found. Ledges which hitherto have not been thought rich enough to be worked, will hereafter, under this new method, be worked with profit. This chemical process of reducing ores will, we doubt not, soon be used in our mines. Mr. Sargent, the agent of the Company, is now at this place. He will shortly proceed to Idaho for the purpose of introducing this valuable discovery into the rich quartz mines of that Territory.

Winter Campaign against the Indians

It appears that there is considerable anxiety in the public mind lest the new commander of the Department of the Columbia shall change the wise policy adopted by Col. Currey in chastising the Indians in Eastern Oregon. We clip the following on this subject from the Mountaineer:

> "Some apprehension has been expressed lest the new commander of the Department of the Columbia should change the plan of operations against the Snake Indians, which three years of continued operations has proven to be the best that can be devised. It is probable that the new commander, who is an officer of experience and skill, will in no wise depart from the policy of an energetic winter campaign, which has been so wisely determined upon. In regard to the rumor that the Oregon Infantry is to be mustered out of service, it must seem plain that a reduction of the forces now in the field in Eastern Oregon comes very inopportunely, unless it is certain that the remainder of the troops will be sufficient to bring the savages to submission."

Nothing would more advance the interests of Oregon at the present time than the bringing of the Indians to terms and confining them on reservations. This can only be accomplished by first severely chastising them. We agree with the Mountaineer that Col. Currey, by organizing a winter campaign, has adopted the only means for the accomplishment of this object. No man knows the Indian character and the condition of the country better than does the present commander of the Department. This he has learned by an extensive experience embracing an active participation in the operations against the Indians in southern Oregon in 1855-6, and more recently by two years active service in eastern Oregon and Idaho, and it is fair to presume that he has made a proper disposition of the troops now under his command.

General Steele has been ordered to this Department, and as he ranks Col. Currey of course he will take command, but we trust there will be no change of policy until the merits of a winter campaign have been fairly tested. For when so tested we think it will be successful and that the large and valuable country now held by savages, will be opened for the prospector and the farmer. The order as we understand it, requiring the Oregon infantry and cavalry to be mustered out of the service is only to apply to such companies as can be relieved by regulars from the East. Some of the regular troops have already arrived, but it is probable that all the Oregon volunteers will not be relieved before spring.

Alex H. Stephens and J. H. Reagan are writing South to their friends urging them the revolutionization of the agricultural system, and that the negro be so treated as to increase his self respect and manhood, that his freedom must be cheerfully acquiesced in and the negro educated.

We find the above paragraph going the rounds of the newspaper press. We print it merely to call attention to the contrast that exists between the statements it contains and those found in the Savannah speech of this same A. H. Stephens delivered on the 21st of March, 1861. In that speech he said that the "ideas of those who instituted the Government of the United States rested upon the assumption of the equality of the races. This was an error. Our new Government rests upon opposite ideas. Slavery is the natural and normal condition of the negro. Our new Government is the first in history to recognize this great philosophical and moral truth." And yet we find this hypocritical traitor now expressing opposite sentiments. Instead of granting him the favor of a private interview, President Johnson ought to give him at once into the power of the law he has violated and defied.

Fire in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—Shaw, Taylor & Co.'s woolen mill, West Philadelphia, was burned last night. Loss, $45,000; partly insured.

From Mexico

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Herald's City of Mexico correspondent on the 1st, gives matters of fear to grow worse for the Empire. The Republicans are increasing in activity and boldness, and have defeated the Imperial troops in a number of recent engagements. Republican bands are swarming all over the country, some of them appearing within 10 miles of the Capital in the State of Vera Cruz. They defeat all efforts for their expulsion, and in one of the towns of this State have established a newspaper organ. In the State of [illegible] the Imperial journals admit their operations have assumed a great proportion [illegible] racurand Jalisco they are sweeping all before them.

The United States Consul in the City of Mexico has been refused admission to the Imperial palace, being informed that he was unknown there.

It is said that the rebel officers from the United States now in Mexico have refused to comply with the request of Maximilian's Secretary of War that they should join the army, adding that hereafter they would fight under no flag but that of the United States.

The Emperor and Empress and the court were to start on a tour to Yucatan on the 4th inst.

Hurricane in the West Indies

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Files of late West India papers furnish additional items of a terrific hurricane which swept over some islands [illegible] last month. In Guadaloupe it was particularly severe. Houses were lifted from the ground [illegible] and blown into fragments, to considerable distance. The air was filled with flying debris. In one town the hospital was blown down and all the inmates killed or wounded. Between 2 0 and 300 were killed. The crops of the island were destroyed, scarcely a tree was left standing and it is believed that many vessels were stranded or sunk.

A melancholy affair occurred in British Guiana on the 10th of last month. A party of gentlemen left Georgetown on the 18th of Sept. to visit the penal settlement of the colony. On their return two boats carrying a number of the excursionists, undertook to go over the falls on the [illegible] river. One of the boats went over in safety, but the other [illegible] and out of twelve persons on board, ten, including Captain [illegible] the Governor's son-in-law, were drowned.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—The owners of the Yosemite which is now undergoing repairs, have decided to remove both of her boilers and replace them with others made [illegible] American iron.

J. G. Pomeroy, a Professor of geology from Pennsylvania, who reached California about a year ago, left this city on Monday the 4th of September last, and has not since been heard from.

The 5th regiment of Infantry, California Volunteers, were mustered out of service at the Presidio, to-day. It is quite probable that a number of them will immediately re-enlist. The battalion of native California Cavalry will be mustered out of service at Drum Barracks as soon as their places have been supplied with other troops and the Nevada Cavalry will be mustered out at Fort Churchill as soon as relieved.

A special order has been issued from headquarters for the arrest of Capt. John C. Hill, of the 6th Infantry California Volunteers who is on trial before a Military Court Martial on the charge of murder, alleged to have been committed in Nevada. Hill claims to be in the hands of the civil authorities of Sonoma county subject to a requisition from the Governor of Nevada, where he claims the right to be tried before a civil court. Officers and soldiers are ordered to aid in securing his arrest. It is charged that when his company was on the way through Nevada they found the dead body of an Indian woman with a living child clinging to it. Captain Hill ordered the dead woman to be scalped, and to satisfy with this cold blooded act, ordered the infant to be torn from the bosom of its dead mother and hurled over a precipice. The infant being completely killing the child, its brains were dashed out with stones by the order of Capt. Hill.

Mr Carver, of Oakland, had his left hand so terribly injured by the bursting of a shot gun, while out hunting a few days since, as to render amputation necessary.

It is a fact [illegible] only unprofitable for the want of settlers and that immigrants [illegible] at least give the section an examination.

PARADISE LOST.—Willamette Theatre was again filled last evening with the elite and beauty of the city, many being unable to obtain admission to see the grand exhibition of Paradise Lost. The paintings [illegible] in number, illustrating Milton's great poem of Paradise Lost are surpassingly beautiful, [illegible] and lights alternating [illegible]. The first scenes represent [illegible] of Lucifer, the plains of Heaven, the [illegible] about the supernal throne [illegible] in heaven, and the three [illegible] of Lucifer and his followers [illegible] by the son of God. Section second shows [illegible] of the Creator, fully carrying out the [illegible] of the session and the first closing of the [illegible] with startling reality. The [illegible] [illegible] created the most intense [illegible] Satan and his infernal peers in [illegible] the caverns of hell; Satan's flight [illegible] in search of the new world; his [illegible] and his alighting upon the [illegible] The exhibition is all that has been [illegible] by our exchanges and as it will be [illegible] we advise early application to [illegible] seats.

[illegible] OF THE ORIZABA.—Some persons complain [illegible] of Customs did wrong in filing his [illegible] in the matter of the seizure of the steamship [illegible] about the hour she was to have taken her [illegible] Saturday evening. Had that officer failed [illegible] the complaint, knowing that a wrong had [illegible] he would have been as culpable as was [illegible] who violated the law and would have [illegible] for his acts. About such matters [illegible] to say that it is supposed that all officers [illegible] States will look after the interests of the [illegible] and prevent smuggling or the prospect of [illegible] the Pacific coast, just as promptly as [illegible] are enforced on the Atlantic side. The [illegible] and it was too palpably disregarded to [illegible] not to attract notice, and the Collector has [illegible] than his duty in the matter, let what may [illegible]

[illegible] COURT.—On Monday the Orizaba [illegible] in this Court, at the suit of the United [illegible] goods from the Active, below Astoria, [illegible] being then on her way from the foreign [illegible] and not yet arrived or entered at the [illegible] the Orizaba then bound out for the home [illegible] the Orizaba was claimed by the Master [illegible] the California Steam Navigation [illegible] the petition of the claimant for the delivery [illegible] the Court appointed Messrs. B. F. Smith, [illegible] and S. Coffin, appraisers, who reported [illegible] worth $120,000. For this sum the claim [illegible] and the vessel was discharged and left [illegible] and growing out of the same transaction [illegible] were commenced by District Attorney [illegible] the Master, A. M. Burns, and the first [illegible] for a penalty of $15,000 each. The [illegible] these officers severally liable for a penalty [illegible] times the value of the goods illegally [illegible] writ of arrest was allowed in each action [illegible] the Collector, and the parties were arrested [illegible] gave bail in the sum of $15,000.

[illegible]—Marshal Hoyt has concluded [illegible] given nightly at the Bella Union [illegible] more or less than regular dance house [illegible] of having the matter tested, [illegible] the keeper of the place—Henry Wag[illegible] for his appearance before Judge [illegible] The "beauties" who nightly appear at [illegible] are paid by the manager for dancing, [illegible] the law against "hurdy gurdy" houses [illegible] cents admission at the door, instead [illegible] the hurdies 25 cents a dance [illegible] are enjoyed by the couples dancing [illegible] giddy maze. It is very probable that [illegible] in a bad situation by [illegible] of law in this matter.

[illegible]—We never had an opportunity until [illegible] the departure of the Orizaba, of seeing [illegible] Gen. Grant set upon the water [illegible] deck, and moves off with fine grace. Capt. ### The Blackfoot Mines—The Road by Pend d'Oreille Lake

We are permitted to publish the following letter written from [illegible] by Mr. H. D. [illegible] of this place. On a perusal of the letter it will be seen that it treats of subjects of vital interest to Portland and [illegible]. There is a large [illegible] country which [illegible] will [illegible] The [illegible] will [illegible] that region [illegible] period [illegible] way of the Missouri [illegible] the country that must be traversed in order to reach the Blackfoot region as well as our [illegible]. We have a trade of surpassing richness within our very grasp and it only remains for our business men to improve the offered opportunity by taking the lead in opening such avenues of transportation as will enable traders in the Blackfoot mines to convey merchandise thither easily and at low rates. The writer of the subjoined letter urges the necessity of constructing a wagon road from the Jocko Agency to Pend Oreille Lake. This, he is of opinion, would give us the trade of that country. The moderate sum of $6000 is all that will be required to [illegible] the work. The business men of Portland ought to furnish the money at once. An expenditure of this kind would very soon bring ample returns. We should be glad to see steps taken to carry the project into immediate operation. The money should be raised and a trustworthy person should take charge of the work.

BLACKFOOT CITY, Sept. 30, 1865.

FRIEND [illegible]—I wrote you from Helena a few days since, and from this place a few days before. Since writing I have visited most of the mining camps about here. I have seen enough to satisfy me that the country is good and will be for some time to come. At present placer mines only have been struck of any value, but there are good indications of leads all about the country. I was at McClellan (not named after Gen. [illegible]) Gulch, about twenty five miles from here, which is one of the richest camps. It was discovered in July and will last about next season. I never have seen such rich mines before. One man has taken out $18,000 since opened, and is still paying [illegible]. Just as I was passing one of the claims on my way to town, a man took out a piece which weighed $411. One claim sold for $1,000 the day I arrived. There is no doubt but this country will be all the go next year. There will be a great rush from all points, and it may be the thing will be overdone.

I have never seen such a scarcity of goods as there is in this whole section. Last year there was an overstock and all goods were cheap, and many of those who went to St. Louis to buy did so with the idea that the stock would last for eight months at least, and bought accordingly. All of these camps have been discovered since February, and have all been dependent on goods intended for the Southern mines. The result is that goods have been scarce and high and are so still. No goods can be had from St. Louis before the last of June or first of July, and only a few from the other way. Goods of all kinds will be high until late in the season next year. I have obtained all the information I could about the advantages of the Columbia over the Missouri for trade. There is no doubt but there will be a good trade up the Columbia next season, and some think for years. The distance from St. Louis to Fort Benton is about 3,100 miles; the time usually is from 70 to 90 days [illegible] make the trip. Only eleven out of all those started, made the trip this season. I have talked with several of the heaviest merchants, and they tell me their goods have cost them about 20 cents freight take them altogether. I think most of the freight this year was taken at 12 cents to Benton, dead weight, and from there to Helena it has been about 6 cents, other expenses 2 cents.

All goods have been cheaper at Portland this season than at St. Louis last spring, but this may not be so next season. Most of the buyers bought in March, and at that time coffee was worth 45c, crushed sugar 38c, common sugar, 25c, and all other goods in about the same proportion. The above are currency prices, but gold at that time was only about 1.50. From Portland to this point or Helena goods have been sent for 18 cents and most persons think can be carried for that price after the roads get good next season. If so, we can hold our own with them in matters of freight as the road is. After all I am able to find out I think a road can be made at a small outlay that will lessen the expenses about one half—say to 10 or 12 cents. There is a good wagon road from Wallula or the Palouse to Pen d'Oreille Lake, and from any part of this country to the Jocko Agency and for some distance beyond. All I have been able to see who have been over the route say that $6,000 will make a good road from the Agency to the lake on this end. If such a road can be made, wagons can go over either of the routes eight months in the year. The connection of the roads will have to be made by steamer a distance of 80 miles on the lake which can be navigated except when prevented by ice. The Mullan road cannot be made of any use for wagons without an immense outlay of money. I think $20,000 would put it in condition so wagons could travel over it for three months only, and with light loads. At present it is a poor pack trail for most of the distance through the Bitter Root mountains 75 miles. It seems to me to be swamps and bridges all the way.

I am of the opinion that the opening of a wagon road would be of the greatest importance to Portland in particular and the whole Willamette valley generally. If a road is opened so freight can be laid down here for say 12 cents Portland can supply this whole country with bacon and flour. It costs to-day about the same to lay down flour at this point from Salt Lake as it does from Portland, and valley flour is worth $3 per bbl more than Salt Lake. The bacon mostly comes from the States and will not sell for as much as Oregon by $5 to $10. This country will be able to supply all the vegetables, but aside from that will do but little. There is but little farming country, and what there is is so high that they have frost most every month in the year. I saw frost almost every night on my way up after leaving the Mission. The distance from here to Wallula by the Mullan road is about fifty miles and to come by the Lake about 190. I doubt whether a charter could be obtained for a road from Jocko or Hell Gate to the Pen d'Oreille as all the powers that be are in favor of St. Louis. Of the present population of the Territory I am unable to say. It is estimated there will be from 10,000 to 40,000 next year. I leave for Helena in the morning and shall probably remain there at present.

THE OFFENSIVE IN [illegible].—We hold it inexcusable in any person, male or female, when they subject us to an annoyance which a very little trouble on their part would obviate. Especially is this the case where the unfortunate possessor of a bad breath will persist in button holing and intruding his views upon us, to our manifest mental and physical discomfort. If these good people would use the Sozodont it would not only render them acceptable acquaintances but would at once greatly improve their teeth and breath.

The Glass Knife.

Shortly after the peace of 1815 my mother had a fancy for possessing a town house, my father, who never, within my memory, refused her anything, at once busied himself in procuring one for her.

Hitherto we had lived in Wales, and I had never dreamed of a greater change than a visit to the county town for a season. In those days people seldom went to London, except on business, unless they were of the highest rank. The county towns were filled at the assize time with all the leading gentry, who enjoyed the gatherings, balls, &c., and then returned to their old halls to pass the remainder of the year in quiet rural avocations, hunting and shooting.

Amongst the peasantry a great awe of the distant city prevailed. It was looked on as an abyss of crime and subtlety—a mighty labyrinth, in which one risked disappearing for ever, and never being heard of afterwards.

This was especially the opinion of my old nurse, who violently set her face against the the idea of a yearly residence in London, which she never named by any other designation than that of 'Babylon.'

I was then a boy of about ten years old; a dreamy child, preferring books to play; precocious from having no child associate, and highly imaginative, probably from the wild scenery and the seclusion in which I had been reared. I loved to wander among the hills surrounding our dwelling, with a volume of romance in my hand, and sit for hours absorbed in the adventures of my favorite heroes. Occasionally I would lay aside my book, and indulge in day-dreams, in which I was myself chief actor, performing impossible feats with the greatest composure, and thinking nothing of them when done. Pernicious as these time wasting reveries generally are, I do not think them quite without their attendant good. The mind, constantly exercised in imagining difficulties and devising an escape from them, gains a degree of readiness in expedients, and is less likely to be surprised from its self-possession by sudden dangers or unusual events. This digression is necessary to explain my story.

To return to our desired change of abode. My father looked every morning through the advertisements of the Morning Herald (of the last date we received), and one day announced that he had found a house advertised in the previous day's paper, which appeared to be exactly that which he required.

"But," he added, to my mother, "I must first go up and see it; then if the price is not exorbitant, you shall have it."

When old nurse heard of my father's intentions, she burst forth into lamentations about the risk he ran, declaring that it was frightfully dangerous to go to London all alone, and that she believed he would never return. It is probable that these diatribes, uttered in my hearing, were partly the cause of a dream which I had that night, although after-events seemed to mark it with almost a prophetic character.

I dreamt that my father was in London, and that I saw him alone in a large room, bending over some papers, while a man armed with a glittering knife stole softly behind him, and was about to plunge it into the back of his neck. The knife was made of glass!

I made desperate efforts to call out and warn my father of his danger, but fruitlessly; I could not utter a sound, and I woke with the agony of my struggle with the nightmare. The next morning at breakfast I told my dream, and my father laughed at me.

"If the weapon were only a glass knife I don't think it would be very dangerous," he said; "but, George, I am not going to London alone."

"Not alone!" said I.

"No," he replied, "I shall take you with me; your mother thinks you require a good dentist, and it is a capital opportunity to have your teeth examined; she has no faith in Mr. Martin's successor."

I was in a state of rapture. To see London; to take such a journey; to get such a chance of adventures—for which I was as eager as Don Quixote; above all, to be a protector to my father—for such in my childish folly I believed I should be—delighted me; I forgot my dream in my joy at such a prospect.

We started the next evening by the mail, and after a very long and tiresome journey, in which not even the shadow of an adventure enlivened the long and dreary way, we entered London late in the evening of the following day. My father took me to a hotel in the Strand, where he usually stayed whenever he visited town, and I gained my first idea of the grandeur and bustle of London from the number of carriages and hackney-coaches which I counted, without ever coming to an end, from my window.

The next day we went to the house of the person who advertised. It was a very large and handsome mansion in a then fashionable square, and my father was greatly pleased with its appearance.

Mr. Brown, the present owner, was at home, and received my father very courteously. He was a most respectable looking old gentleman, with a grave, formal demeanor. He told my father that he was about to go to America, and that he wished to sell as speedily as possible, even if it went a little below its real value. He took my father over it, (I accompanying them) and certainly it was a palatial residence in point of size, but it was badly furnished, and the household was evidently much too small to keep it in proper order and cleanliness. In one room, up stairs, we saw a little girl playing with a kitten: she was a thin, pale child, with large, dark eyes, and long hands and fingers. My father just spoke to her, but I was shy and said nothing.

After we had seen the house, my father told Mr. Brown that he would send a surveyor to look at it, and if his report were favorable, he would at once purchase it.

The next two days were spent in seeing the wonders of London. My father took me to the Tower, to see the armor, and the wild beasts, to St. Paul's and to Westminster Abbey, and in the evening to the play.

I had never been so happy before; and yet when the day came on which he had agreed to go to Mr. Brown's and pay for the house, (of which the surveyor had given an excellent report;) I felt so much depressed that my father asked what ailed me, and why I was so pale. I explained that I felt as if some great misfortune was going to befall us. He laughed, and said, "Don't be superstitious, my boy; you are only feeling the reaction of so much unusual excitement."

'Papa,' I said, 'you don't think Mr. Brown has a glass knife, do you? His room is just like the room I dreamed about.'

'George,' said my father, 'it is a good thing for you that we are going to live in London for a few months every year; you are getting as superstitious as an old woman. I hope you are not really timid?'

'No, no,' I cried indignantly, 'I am not afraid—at least not for myself.'

Soon afterwards we set out. Before we left I told the waiter where we were going; I cannot quite tell why. On reaching Mr. Brown's house we were shown into his study, a large, and very gloomy room, the window of which looked into a paved court at the back of the house. I gazed out of the window while my father was talking to Mr. Brown, and saw a grating in it raised, and a good deal of coal-dust sprinkled round it.

It seemed that there was some delay in the business; the deeds of the house and the deed of transfer, or something (I never knew what it was), were not ready or had not arrived, and we had to wait.

"Perhaps your son would like to go up and play with my little girl while we settle our business," said Mr. Brown glancing at me.

I did not know what to say when my father appealed to me. I disliked leaving him with Mr. Brown in that dismal room, so like my dream; and yet I could not refuse to go, for I was painfully shy.

My hesitation ended in my father desiring me to go, and Mr. Brown escorted us up one flight of stairs, and from thence pointing up another, and bidding me go on upwards, and find Mary in her nursery.

I obeyed, and found Mary at the top of the house alone in a large garret, which was her nursery. She seemed surprised to see me, but she was a very self-possessed little girl, much older than myself in manner, though not in mind, for I soon perceived that she was very simple, almost wanting in intellect.

"Are you sorry to go away from this house?" I asked, just to make something to say to her as she sat hugging her doll.

"Mary isn't going away," she said.

"Yes, you are," said I; "my papa has bought the house. Didn't you know it? The gentleman who came to see it with me the other day, has bought it."

She laughed a foolish and yet a cunning laugh, as she replied, "Oh, many gentlemen come to see the house but nobody buys it. Papa says it shall always be Mary's house."

"How silly she is!" I thought, and then I cannot tell what made me utter the words—I said aloud, "Has your papa got a glass knife?"

"Yes," she said, nodding repeatedly, "Mary's papa has a sharp glass knife, Mary must not touch it, it will cut her."

It was with difficulty I kept from crying out as I heard this confirmation of my dream. I jumped up, and wishing Mary a hurriedly good bye, ran to the door. It was locked!

All my fears became certainties the moment I knew we were locked in, but I had been in too many imaginary perils to be utterly terrified and despairing. I made no noise at the door: I returned to Mary, told her I would catch her a bird, and opened the window.

Ah! what a height it was from the ground, and how the roof sloped beneath the little window ledge! An English boy's head would have turned dizzy as he looked down, but I was a mountaineer, and it was a peril I could and must dare, for the next house had a parapet, which opened on to at a spring from the outer window sill, and if I could get on it I could doubtless obtain help from the neighbors.

Little Mary sat looking with stupid wonder at me as I climbed on a chair, got out on the narrow ledge, and then [illegible] on the parapet at the side. I [illegible] window stood open on [illegible] a new cap, [illegible] stone, and uttered [illegible] down to her.

"Oh, pray," I cried, "let me come in, and go down below, my father is being murdered in that house."

She helped me in at once, ran down with me, called a man servant, and told him what I had said. The man believed me. Who could have doubted the earnestness of my exertion? He went to his master, and they both at once walked to the next door and knocked.

There was some delay in answering the [illegible] and Dr. Houghton (my new friend) bade the maid, who stood trembling on the [illegible] of the house, run for a constable.

By-and-by a man opened the door, and inquired sullenly what we wanted. In answer, Dr. Houghton, and his man pushed past him into the passage, saying, "Where is the child's father?"

The man turned pale, and stammered out something about calling the gentleman, retreating down the passage as he spoke. I flew to the door of the back room, where I had left my father, and tried to open it, crying "Papa! papa!" My father's voice resounded from within, calling, "Help! help!" and then came a dull sound as of a fall.

Dr. Houghton and his man had followed me; they at once forced open the door between them, and a horrid scene presented itself. On the floor lay my poor father, covered with blood, the furniture was all in disorder, and the room bore testimony of a fearful struggle having taken place. I ran to his side, and knelt down and called on him, in an agony of grief and fear, to speak to me, but he had lost consciousness.

Dr. Houghton and his servant lifted him on a sofa near, and the former, after feeling his pulse, pronounced him still living, and sent his servant for restoratives and bandages. Meantime, several passers-by had dropped in, and the constable arrived with further assistance, and they at once began a search for the murderer.

The window presented the probable egress by which the assassin escaped from the room, but it opened into a closed in court yard, from which there was no visible outlet. Some one, however, shrewder than the rest, observed the scattered coal-dust, and examining the now shut grating over the coal-cellar aperture, detected the mark of blood-stained fingers on it. They at once proceeded to examine the cellar, one or two jumping fearlessly down the aperture, the others descending the stairs in the regular way; and below, a very singular discovery was made. In one of the cellars, which was not paved, an open grave was found—destined no doubt for the victim who had so narrowly escaped being murdered. Meantime, I watched beside my father. After Dr. Houghton had bound up his wounds and administered some brandy, he opened his eyes and spoke.

"Is it you, George? God bless you, my dear boy; you came only just in time," he said.

Dr. Houghton, seeing my father so much revived, insisted on having him removed to his own house, where, in short, he remained till his perfect recovery. As soon as he was able, he gave the following account of the outrage perpetrated on him.

"Soon after you left the room, George," he said, "Brown returned with the papers, which he begged me to look at, adding, 'Shall I make out a receipt—do you pay at once?' I replied in the affirmative. He wrote the receipt; I gave the money, or rather a cheque for the money, and he begged me to examine whether I [illegible] for right or not. I was just bending down, glancing at it, when a sudden gleam fell on the [illegible] mirror which you may remember faces the window, and happened to be opposite to me. I don't think I should have remarked it, if I had not been worried by my poor boy's fears of a glass knife; as it was, with a sudden start I turned, and thus escaped receiving a stab in the back of my throat from an actual glass knife, which passed before my eyes at the moment. I seized the villain's arm instantly, but he was a strong man in spite of his apparent age. He drew the knife through my hand, cutting it with the sharp edge, but succeeded in breaking it. Then he drew out a poignard, and the struggle became [illegible] I fought hard for my life. Then came a knock at the door, which evidently startled my assailant; he relaxed his hold for an instant, and I disarmed him and wounded him with the poignard. Then I heard my boy's voice and shouted for help. But the effort of calling out gave my foe a momentary advantage over me, he released his arm from my grasp, and struck me heavily on the head. I fell, and remember nothing more till I saw your kind faces bending over me."

The monster who thus made of a noble dwelling a shambles was never found; he had escaped in some wonderful manner from the cellar into which he had descended, possibly in the ordinary staircase, during the confusion, before the constables arrived. His man servant [illegible] also [illegible] his escape, and the only person [illegible] was poor little Mary. She was conveyed to the workhouse till her friends or connections could be found.

The cellar in which the open grave was discovered was dug over, and two bodies were discovered beneath its damp surface; one not recognizable; the other identified as that of a gentleman who, like my father, had been in treaty for the house.

The mansion itself belonged to a gentleman who resided on the Continent, and to whom Brown was agent. He was allowed to occupy it till it should be sold, an event of not very probable occurrence, considering the use the infamous solicitor made of his trust. He never ventured to present, or use in any way my father's cheque, and my mother was so shocked at the scarcely peril to which her husband had been exposed, that she gave up her wish for a town house and the project was abandoned.

I need scarcely say how heroic it pleased them to think their little son had been, and there was never a gathering round the hearth,

When rain and wind beat dark December, without the story of my dream, and the brave use I made of it, being told; and amongst the legends of an old family there is certainly scarcely one stranger than that of THE GLASS KNIFE.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the Lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

FRENCH MEDICAL OFFICE,

FOR THE

CURE OF SPECIAL DISEASES,

ARMORY HALL BUILDING,

Northeast Corner Montgomery and Sacramento streets,

ENTRANCE ON EITHER MONTGOMERY OR SACRAMENTO STREET.

DR. PERRAULT is a Graduate of the University of Queen's College, and is the ONLY REGULAR GRADUATE who practices as a SPECIALIST in San Francisco.

DR. PERRAULT will cure all who are afflicted with Nervous Debility, Loss of Memory and Vigor, etc., resulting from injurious habits, contracted in youth, or excesses in maturity, which produce constitutional debility and premature decline.

It is a melancholy fact that thousands fall victims to [illegible] unskillful treatment and improper use of Mercury.

All cases of Gonorrhea, Gleet, Strictures, Diseases of the Bladder, Gravel, Spermatorrhea, and Impotence will be cured in a few days, without prevention from business.

To the Ladies.

Ladies suffering from Whites, Falling of the Womb, Suppression of the Menses, or Profuse Flowing, Costiveness, Piles, Weakness of the Back, Pain in the Side, Headache, Palpitation, and all other diseases to which the female system is subjected, will find prompt relief by addressing themselves to DR. PERRAULT, corner Sacramento and Montgomery streets. Private entrance on Sacramento street.

To those seeking our advice a plain statement of their case will be given, whether curable or not. All cases taken under treatment warranted. No charges for advice, No poisons or harsh medicines to injure the constitution; no making sick to make well; honest in our dealings; frank in our opinions, moderate in our charges. We invite investigation, claim not to know everything, nor to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense, and to say right out if the diseases is incurable.

We particularly request those who have tried this Doctor, and that scientific Physician, boasted and advertised, till worn out and discouraged, to call upon us. It will cost nothing, as consultations are free.

N. B.—Persons at a distance can be cured at home by addressing a letter to DR. PERRAULT, stating their case as minutely as possible, general habits of living, occupation, etc. Letters to be addressed, J. PERRAULT, M. D., corner Sacramento and Montgomery streets, Rooms 10 and 11, or Box 973, Post Office, San Francisco.

DR. PERRAULT still retains the agency of DR. DIGY'S FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS. Their numerous safe has established their reputation as the only safe and effectual remedy for all Irregularities and obstruction in females, no matter from what cause. On receipt of five dollars, these pills will be sent by Mail or Express to any part of the world, secure from curiosity or damage. se22dpom
